- Would you like to create a vision for your life?
- Do you want a road map for your next six months?
- Do you want to find the big ideas that motivate you?

Then grab your favorite magazines and scissors and join us for this vision board workshop.

Before you can make a plan to accomplish anything – from the next thing you want to create in your business, to your next school project, to the ways you want to improve your closest relationships – you have to have a vision.

In this workshop, executive coach Meg Dennison, will guide you through a fun and enlivening way to discover your vision and get you ready for action.

Meg is a certified coach who helps busy people deepen their creativity and increase productivity at home and at work through emotional intelligence, which is a key trait of top performers. She also writes weekly about love and relationships in Huffington Post.
